Job description:

You're a Christ-centered man who refuses to play small when it comes to Kingdom impact. You're bold in faith, energized by building relationships, and wired to take ownership of both mission and revenue. You're comfortable inviting people to invest in something bigger than themselves—not just to fund programs, but to build sustainable Kingdom impact that lasts in a community for years to come. You connect easily with everyday men, as well as pastors, business leaders, and influencers, and you know how to cast vision, rally partners, and mobilize people toward action so more men can know God and know his purpose. If you're passionate about helping men step into their God-given roles—and not afraid to go after the support needed to make that impact possible—this role may be your calling.

About Men of Iron:

Men of Iron exists to change a culture, one man at a time by equipping everyday men to know God and know his purpose. Through mentorship, small groups, retreats, and leadership development, we partner with churches, businesses, and other Kingdom-minded organizations to reach men where they live, work, and lead. The Iron Rep plays a vital role in expanding that mission locally by creating lasting and sustainable impact in the community and mentoring more men step into the roles God designed them to fill.

Responsibilities:

- Build and grow a base of monthly financial partners through consistent outreach, meetings, and networking with individuals, churches, and organizations.
- Launch and support Men of Iron mentorships, small groups, and retreats while recruiting and developing local leaders.
- Cultivate relationships with mentors, churches, and community partners to expand the reach of Men of Iron.
- Maintain accurate records of relationships, activity, and commitments in the CRM.
- Capture and share stories of life change to encourage men and strengthen the mission.

- Coaching, collaboration, and shared best practices from the broader Men of Iron movement.
- A role that is both entrepreneurial and pastoral—combining fundraising, leadership development, and discipleship.
- The freedom to build partnerships and mobilize churches and leaders in your region.
- PTO, Company Swag, Autonomy, Health Benefits

What you bring to the table:

- A Christ-centered, Spirit-led life marked by spiritual maturity, integrity, and alignment with the mission of Men of Iron.
- A relationship builder who connects naturally with pastors, business leaders, and community influencers.
- Entrepreneurial ownership—able to build and sustain your regional donor base and partnerships.
- A passion for discipling and mentoring men, helping them grow in faith, leadership, and purpose.
- Strong organization and follow-through, managing relationships, programs, and CRM activity with excellence.
